It's been a while but that doesn't mean we don't think of you every single day. So many things I wish you were here to be a part of especially for Lilah, but it's okay, Lilah knows who her "papa Larry" is and she will continue to learn more about you as she grows. Mama and papa are still in the yard, Shaughnaussey is making his way home, Pora is holding down the fort and harassing Haweo (as you predicted) and Lilah is taking over the house. Oh and now we have a dog Graham and 10 bunnies (we had 12 but 2 died). Things are hard but God is always good. I miss you. ALWAYS.

How I miss you so much! I call your phone to hear your voice, I watch videos to see you and hear your voice but not having you here is heart breaking. So many things happening and going on that I need you to tell it to and for you to tell me what I need to do. We buried Ane on the 9th and he is your neighbor, and now when I go to visit you, Ane and Neti, mama and papa is with with me so they can visit all you guys as well. They found out I go everyday and were upset that I didn't take them with me, so they are in the car everyday now. Mom sweeps all the dirt away and Papa tell her she is killing the grass...you know how they are, and Pora and I just laugh. Everyone misses you...wish you were here with me, but I know things are so much better in heaven so enjoy your free time away from me...i will be there soon.

Its been a crazy month. Ane passed away in south carolina and vela nesa and I went to bring him home. You must have already seen him and he is probably telling you...how did you end up with Lika! He said every time he saw us. Mama and Papa are doing better now that he is home. Pora took care of them while we were gone and sunga and the great grandkids came to help care for them. Life is moving way to fast. I'm tired physically and mentally with all that has happened this year. You left in January but we didn't say our final farewells til April. April Ane was here to be with us as we said good bye to you. Now, September, 5 months later, Ane is there with you. Too many too fast. I need time to breath and accept that you are no longer here before anything else happens but Ane is not here. Thank you for always telling me to love him! I miss you and all your wisdom.

This week was hard...we took your van in for your maintenance check and because there was something that felt loose in the gear shaft so it's been in the shop for a week. Coming home and your van is not here as if you are still at work and should be home soon. I just need you to walk through the door so we can come downstairs and hang out for a little bit then head upstairs where we lay in bed and talk crap about nothing at all! I miss our quiet moments

Today I watched a video of you and Pora. Pora was talking about her job at the movie theater and how you laughed about it...I miss your laugh! Then in your calming voice you gave her such wise counsel...with all that is going on I miss your advice and your simple...don't worry about things we cannot change attitude. There was something about how you see things that made things much simpler. LIFE WILL NEVER BE THE SAME WITHOUT YOU!

I wish I could put into words how having a conversation was with you. I love that we could always share our point of views, how you always had a realistic point to my crazy antics but never made me feel like what I was going on about was out of my reach. You're simple answers were all that mattered, we could talk for hours on hours... well actually I'd talk for hours and you'd just let me. Missing you more and more, everyday..
